In 2004, Sister Sarah Pick, a 74-year-old nun from New Jersey, won a $10 million lottery jackpot. But instead of spending her winnings on herself, she used them to help others.

Sister Sarah had been a nun for over 50 years, and she had always dedicated her life to serving the poor and needy. She worked at a soup kitchen, taught at a Catholic school, and volunteered at a local hospital.

When she won the lottery, Sister Sarah could have easily retired and lived a comfortable life. But she knew that there were people who needed her help, so she decided to use her winnings to make a difference.

Sister Sarah started by giving money to her church and to the soup kitchen where she volunteered. She also donated money to a local homeless shelter and to a fund that helps people with disabilities.

But Sister Sarah didn't stop there. She also used her winnings to start a foundation that provides scholarships to students who want to become teachers or nurses. She also funded a program that provides free medical care to low-income families.

Sister Sarah's generosity and compassion have inspired people all over the world. She is a shining example of how one person can make a difference.

Sister Sarah's Early Life

Sister Sarah Pick was born in 1930 in Newark, New Jersey. She was the youngest of eight children, and her parents were devout Catholics. Sister Sarah attended Catholic school and was always involved in her church.

After graduating from high school, Sister Sarah entered the Sisters of Charity of Saint Elizabeth. She took her final vows in 1954 and began her life as a nun.

Sister Sarah taught at a Catholic school for many years, and she also worked at a soup kitchen and a homeless shelter. She was known for her kindness and compassion, and she always put the needs of others before her own.

Sister Sarah's Lottery Win

In 2004, Sister Sarah bought a lottery ticket at a local convenience store. She had never played the lottery before, but she decided to give it a try. To her surprise, she won the jackpot of $10 million.

Sister Sarah was overjoyed, but she knew that she had a responsibility to use her winnings wisely. She decided to give back to the community that had given her so much.

Sister Sarah's Legacy

Sister Sarah Pick died in 2015 at the age of 85. She left behind a legacy of love and compassion. She used her lottery winnings to make a difference in the lives of countless people, and her story continues to inspire people today.

Sister Sarah Pick is a reminder that one person can make a difference. She showed the world that even the smallest act of kindness can make a big difference.
